

Tallowood Decking

LB Timber
from $4.80

Description

The colour of Tallowood ranges from near white to dark yellow-brown, with a tinge of olive green and with beautiful growth rings – it is a very interesting timber and beautiful for Decking. Tallowood – EUCALYPTUS MICROCORYS – is found along Australia's east coast and coastal ranges, between the Hunter River in New South Wales and the Maryborough district of Queensland. Featuring a natural sheen, colours range from near white to dark yellow-brown, with a tinge of olive green and with beautiful growth rings. The wood is moderately coarse in texture, with an interlocked grain that is usually free from gum veins. Tallowood has good resistance to surface checking when exposed to weather.
